WHAT IS ALREADY CHANGING?

Work is shifting.
Agents are acting.
Systems are judging.
Claims are flying.

— the future is arriving ahead of schedule.

You've built the habits and the judgment: how to pick a tool, prompt it, check what it hands back, and spot the traps.

So far this has been about you and the tool. Now it widens out. AI is reshaping work, starting to act on its own, and making decisions about real people, including you. None of this is a someday story; every piece of it is already underway.

This section is about reading that change clearly: what is actually shifting, what to do when a system judges you, and how to weigh the big claims about where it all goes next.

THE BIG SHIFTS

First, the changes already underway in work and in what AI can do on its own.

2

WHERE IT LANDS ON YOU

Then, what to do when AI judges you, and how to read the big claims about what comes next.

Keep this question in mind: What's actually coming, and what do I do about it?
